

Set in the Taisho Era. After getting into an argument with her father Eiyosuke, Takiko is absorbed into the Chinese book "The Universe of The Four Gods", which was translated by her father. Transported into a different dimension, she has been told that she is the Priestress of Genbu... This is true beginning of the popular "Fushigi Yûgi" series. Now the story of Genbu no Miko (Priestess of Genbu) has begun. The long-awaited first volume!

"Genbu" -- The story of "Northern Genbu Seven Seishuku"

HISTORICAL NOTE: According to ancient Chinese astronomy, the sky was divided into four quadrants, each quadrant representing a season of the year. These quadrants are then each divided into 28 different segments, called "seishuku". The quadrants themselves are associated with colored animal deities that serve as guardians. These are Suzaku the Red Bird, Seiryuu the Blue Dragon, Genbu the Black Tortoise or Warrior, and Byakko the White Tiger. The unique circular formation of the quadrants and constellations has many different explanations. One is based off of an ancient Chinese creation myth about a goddess (Nu Kwa) who had, in the course of a divine war with rival deities damaged one of the "pillars" holding up the sky, causing water to pour from it onto the land and the horizon to become lopsided. In order to stabilize things, she rebuilt the square-like "pillar" using colored stones that shone in the night sky, and placed four guardians in each corner of it, in order to keep it from collapsing. Another explanation concentrates more on the "time" application of the Four Gods formation. The moon's orbit was used by the ancient Chinese to measure the passing of seasons, each season represented by a guardian in the sky. It was believed that the moon passed one of the constellations ("seishuku") every few days, and that it took the passing of all 28 constellations to complete a full orbit of the moon, and therefore of all the seasons. Each season was thus represented by the four guardian deities mentioned before. Hello Everyone!! Volume one of Fushigi Yuugi Gensu is finally out! There was a really cool prologue that was not originally printed in Sho-Comi Zoukan (the magazine this manga is published in). Also, there was a nice freetalk at the end of the chapter that was not included in the monthly magazine. And for this reason we are doing this mini-release which also includes the cover!! We are going to continue doing scanlations from the books to ensure the highest quality and to ensure that we no longer miss anything cool that is published in the books!

Please enjoy this manga, and do purchase it if you like it it!!

- Siana

We hope you enjoyed this scanlation! ♡ We also hope if you enjoyed it that you will purchase a copy of the original. It's very important to support the manga artists that you like! Also if this ever becomes licensed we would ask you to please stop distribution.

All rights are retained by the original copyright holder for this manga. We do these scanlations for fans, and they are by fans.

If you have paid for this scanlation you have been ripped off! We ask people NOT to purchase scanlations. You can download our scanlations from our IRC channel and some are hosted on our website. The Legend

The Taishou Era

"Who knows about the Japan that existed 80 years ago these days?"

This little info session is for those who asked the question above

- Even though Takiko was still wearing the "high-coloured" kimono in my drawings, Year 8 of Taishou (1919) was actually the year Sailor uniforms had first come in to Japan officially (The first school to use it was Tokyo's Yamawaki High School of Arts! Which means Takiko must have wore a Sailor uniform while going to school at the time)

← By the end of Taishou Era, Sailor uniforms had become quite common in Japanese schools.

- After thinking about it carefully, I've decided to let Takiko stick with "Hakama" instead of a Sailor uniform. (I didn't want her to double with Suzuno's, so) Since it was Year 12 of Taishou, Akita's high schools have allowed western clothes to be used (just in time > If I were to redo the story of Genbu I'd have made the time a bit more into the past, but since I've already done it this far

- By the way, I've dragged Morioka out just for the sake of the anime setting (laugh). That was quite fun! Somewhere around Chapter 29, 30 I think. I personally hope you'd look at the anime and movies differently from the manga, and I'll keep the good parts. I've just gone for an interview a few days ago, so (laugh) Morioka is such a nice place! Find more details of it in volume 2.

(Note: "Hakama" = a special type of kimono half-western style. Please see Sakura's uniform in Sakura Wars for a visual explanation ^^)

This is Yui Watase Background music "Girls 12 Intro" (Girls 12 Intro: A group of twelve Chinese girls playing Chinese instrument in Japan. They have become famous within recent years) Another "Fushigi Yuugi" story. Has it been seven years since I've touched it? It doesn't matter if you're a fan of the previous FY work (I call it "Suzaku-Seinyuu Saga", abbreviation "SuSei Saga") or you're a first time reader of my manga. I hope you enjoy this series. Including some stories from the Byakko, I've always wanted to draw this "Genbu Kaiden." Ah... by the way, when I said some time ago, "I won't draw it anymore", I meant the continuation of "SuSei Saga", which ended with 18 volumes, yep. Even when the SuSei Saga was still in progress, many fans said "We want to read the Genbu + Byakko stories too!" This includes the fans from other countries as well. I've always thought "I like this idea" but was convinced that it wouldn't happen with a 90% guarantee. Yet to come across today and to see my old wish has come true. Oh my what a surprise! I still can't believe the reality that's in front of me. As for "FY Series," even after the manga has finished, the story was remade/turned into anime, O.V.A, novels, Special BOX, trading cards, Special Complete Talkbook. It actually never ceased to exist. Oh yes, the anime episodes are still on the Cable/Satellite so, thank God. Because of its popularity, there wasn't a single year so far that I didn't have to draw FY related illustrations. Haha. Thank you so much to all my faithful readers! The heroine this time is a female student of 80 years ago, in the era of Taishou. Since the plot is not set in the modern world of today, I've taken a long time picturing the background of the era as well as the feeling of Takiko in the first chapter.

Info on female students of that era.

Year 39 of Meiji (1906)

"New Esperanto" → An international medium of communication was popular, words were read backwards for fun. Example: Baka (crazy) < > Kaba Year 40 of Meiji (1907)

"Beauble" → A word derived from "beautiful," meaning an ugly man that acts as if he's handsome

"Shushu" → Hinting at the ugliness of a man. "This is used to humiliate the men. How terrible. Just like the high school girls nowadays.

Besides, there were also women gangsters back in the Taishou Era. The image of "quiet, cute girls" are now broken.

HEY, HEY,

THE PRIESTESS OF GENBU?

The Genbu Story will be a little more on the mature side. There might also be parts that are "different from the original Fushigi Yuugi". It's obvious that the time period and the characters are totally different. Or you can look at it this way: I'm a totally different person than who I was 20 years ago, so... (laugh) Arc, plot, presentation and in-depth contents of my style have all changed in the past decade. Therefore, I hope you can look at this manga as a "completely new work". Nevertheless, the origin of the story is the same. I haven't forgotten to put some parts that will make old FY readers happy as in "Ah, I know this!" It's kind of like the Episode 1 of "Star Wars" - The "silver light" in Chapter 2 was a complete mimic of Mlaka's experience in the old FY.

But I don't know how far I am going to break the old legend of FY. This is going to be a lot of work. On top of that, since I've made the Genbu Story without thinking about the older FY works, I panic a lot whenever I read the old FY to find places that - "uhoh, so I drew something like this!" - Can I really make the two stories as one family? But it's also fun. Don't you think it's more interesting to have improvements and new elements in a series (laugh)?

If you're interested to know the origin of this Genbu work, but haven't read the old FY books, please get the 34 volumes of Fushigi Yuugi comics (or the 9-volume complete pack) as well as the 10-volume FY novels from the bookstores. Also, don't forget about "Zettai Kareschi" in the official Sho-comi Monthly.

Georgi-san was a

at this time.

* The students (female students) of the time are usually from the elite families. (Very rich families)

"English lessons were actually taught at the time?"
I've received quite a few letters from fans asking that, and now you'll be surprised: not only English, but even German and French were popular choices for lessons. Foreign exchanges were often considered, and students in high school or university at that time were all extraordinarily smart. The Top School of Choice was certainly, Tokyo Teikoku* University (The present University of Tokyo)

*Note "Teikoku" means "Empire" in Japanese

"They were truly the 'brains of Japan.'" but look at present days. Everyone should study more. We should follow the good examples of the past. (I had better do that myself.)

* Naginata (I'm assuming it's talking about Kendō) was a popular sport for female students. It was brought in at Year 5 of Taisho (1916), and became an official sport for female students. This was true also during Year 93 of Meiji (1920) along with swimming, archery, skating, tennis and badminton.

← This is the girl's uniform for Naginata in tightened Kimono style. It was officially presented at Year 4 of Taisho (1919). It was the time period where the phrase "Yokotte yo" became a common phrase among girls.

Note: "Yokotte yo" means "It's fine" in Japanese

* Gym lessons were officially accepted at girls' schools ever since Year 2 of Meiji (1869). However, there were many oppositions as of Year 15 of Meiji (1882). "How disgraceful!" "How could you let girls shake their heads and spread their legs like crazy?" Some students were forced to quit schools because of that.

← This uniform is originated from men's kimono, which is where the "how disgraceful" comment came from... They saw it as an attire for men only. As a side note, there was an extra line sewn at the sleeves for the uniform. How fashionable! Students usually sewed the line in by themselves as a symbol of their school. Though it also depended on the school itself.

← Boots started to be fashionable since Year 1 of Taisho. During the Mid-Taisho period black socks with black shoes were preferred.
